

The Golden Rule

If I were David's sister, the new rule I would make for him would be "Treat others the way you want to be treated." Although this rule is made just for David, it would also benefit David's sister.

ELISE ROSE PHILLIPS: Thesis

My first reason for choosing this rule is that it would make David become a more polite person. If David becomes more polite, he has a better chance of making new friends. His friends could invite him to their houses to play. With David out of the house, his sister would have more free time to draw or play with her own friends. Politeness is very important for one to get along with others.

ELISE ROSE PHILLIPS: How would it benefit his sister? Consider adding another sentence here.

Another reason is that people would be respectful towards David when they find that he is respectful to them as well. David wouldn't get teased or bullied as much by Ryan, or other kids. Also, David's sister wouldn't have to defend David as much due to the minimal teasing from others. Respect of others is an important value to have.
